ARTIST STATEMENT

My art is a form of expression and an extension of my personality. My creative mind never stops, and everything around me is an inspiration for my work, even the most minor and insignificant things in life. I started doing art at a very young age. For me, art becomes a source of search, processing, and ultimately peace with various experiences. Sometimes I draw figures, faces, and things in which I find something profound. I like to capture a moment and put it in a work of art. What I like most about the design is the emotions. I love when I see something shaking in someone's eyes and face, something just below the surface, and I can capture it with my drawing. I want to inspire people with works of art that focus on the resilience, strength, and connection of the human spirit and emotions.

After graduating from University, I worked in many Local Design Offices. At the end of 1999, I started focusing on web design. I spent the last 21 years working as a web designer and developer at Cyprus's largest Telecommunication Authority Company. Although family and work commitments prevailed, I continued my passion for art in my spare time. I am an incredibly compassionate person, and in many ways, I put myself wholeheartedly into every work of art. I never focus on specific art styles and themes, as I do not want to be framed in a particular technique and be more faithful to my emotions and imagination. Different media always allow me to express other ideas, and during the research, new areas of interest emerge and lead to my subsequent work. Sometimes I even use themes to satisfy my obsession with colors and imagination. In a way, I communicate with this elusive sense of absolute joy in my art, and every time I feel happy in my life, I create art with colors and full of fantastic images and objects.

I always find beauty in bad things and try to transfer them to powerful and unique works of art. My work has been constantly rooted in the many personal emotions, moments, and things I have drawn from life for the past ten years. Evolution is my primary goal. It's something I demand of myself and my job. In recent years my works have been created spontaneously. At first, I did not realize it, but in the process, looking at them as a whole, I can say that indeed, there is an explosion of imagination. I avoid pre-defining the true meaning of the messages I send through my work and letting the viewer travel through my art. Although there may not always be similarities in subject matter, they are associated with a wealth of imagination and perfectionist detail, and my philosophy is consistent. Each work consists of different concepts, and "Communication" with my audience is what I have in mind when I paint. I never have hidden messages, and I like when viewers express different emotional reactions and perceptions about each of my works. Freedom of thought is a crucial feature of my work. I try to make the viewer perceive the meaning with his perception and way of thinking. The messages for each, however, may be different.

It is a blessing to be able to design and be creative. It gives me a sense of completion, harmony, and relaxation.

ARTIST BIO

Xrista was born in 1974 in Nicosia, Cyprus. She is married and has two lovely children. She started dabbling in art from a very young age, and at school, she excelled in art and was awarded a prize for the highest grade in technical design and excellence in the History of Art. For the academic year 1993-1994, she was awarded a full scholarship from an Art University in Cyprus, in HND "Graphic Art and Advertising Design." Consequently, she followed her art passion in the UK. In 1997 she received her Bachelor of "Graphic and Media Design" from the University of the Arts London. Since then, she has been continuously informed on the new trends in contemporary art, and everything around her is an inspiration to her work. She worked at several Local Design Agencies. In the late 1999's, she started focusing on web designing, where she spent the last 18 years working as a web designer and developer at the biggest Telecommunication Authority Company in Cyprus.

Although family and work commitments prevailed, she managed to pursue her passion for art. Her art is a form of expression and an extension of her personality. Her creative mind never stops; Her imagination and love for the most minor and insignificant things in life inspire her work. She never focuses on specific art styles as she does not want to frame herself within a kind of technique and be more loyal to her feelings and imagination. Different mediums always allow her to express other ideas, and during research, new areas of interest arise and lead to her subsequent work. She sometimes uses subjects that will enable her to satisfy her obsession with colors and fantasy. "Sweet Dreams," a color drawing painting, was created with color markers, black ink, and acrylic paint. Within her art, somehow, She communicates that elusive sense of sheer joy. She loves illustrations, and every time she feels happy in her life, she creates art with colors and is full of imaginary images and objects. She is generally not too concerned with making a great deal of meaning beyond the aesthetic. Imagery is often borrowed from her life, sweet things around her and stuff that might evoke a sense of wonderment and ultimate fantasy.

In 2009, her passion for Digital Art and Fashion led her to draw digital works of art and transfer them to clothes of her creation through silkscreen and digital printing. This working method opened up opportunities using her talent in digital design, supporting charitable organizations in her country by designing a range of T-Shirts, scarves all contributing to providing proceeds for those in need.

In 2010, Xrista started to fuse life into a screen of which we percept as just another modern age piece of machinery; her perseverance and outlook on this is was described as "experimenting on the unique experiences and capabilities they offer," to Xrista Stavrou, it is just as the same as a black canvas. She always loves experimenting with different media and styles. The digital art "Perplexity," which received many awards and certifications, inspired her Scarf Collection 2018-2019. The working process accidentally created the composition of abstract playful forms, elements, textures, and bright warm colors. The results can be surprising even to Xrista. That's what makes abstract art so unique to her. It is produced from intense thought processes to amplify her fantasy and dreams of love, fashion, and beauty. The ability to express her creativity by creating a visual experience that is free and unencumbered by the weight of objects and always open to interpretation makes her enthusiastic about abstract art. Her goal is to inspire those who see her work more carefully and discover what emotions, sensations, or memories emerge. People are encouraged to discover the meaning behind her work by traveling around the art without expectation and looking at colors, styles, materials, surfaces, and how they interact.

In 2011 she was invited and collaborated with Etherial Rock' n' Roll Brand, where she managed the Clothing Line for almost six years. During that period, she had 2 Solo and 3 Group Fashion presentations and created her first "Digital Skull Queen" to inspire her T-Shirt Collection from 2013-2014. Skull Art Queen marked her art career. In 2015 She won various competitions and published her work in internationally well-known Books, Magazines, and Calendars. In 2016 Xrista was the subject of several Fashion Blogs and magazines.

Her work has been almost rooted in a personal mash-up of feelings and moments in the last fifteen years. Although there may not always be material similarities, her arts are linked by the richness of imagination and perfectionistic details. While she uses a variety of materials and processes in each design, her philosophy is consistent. 'Communication' with her audience is what she has in mind when she paints. She never has hidden messages, and she loves it when viewers express different emotional reactions and perceptions for each work. Xrista has won various competitions and had her name inserted in internationally well-known Books, Magazines, Calendars. Xrista's «Skull Art Queen» presented on the «Day of the Dead» Calendar 2016 by Amber Lotus Publishing. The art is available to view online Galleries, Saatchi Art and Artmajeur accordingly.

All her hard-working efforts finally paid off when chosen out of 50 other participants for the Cyprus Walk of Fame. A design contest where Xrista was awarded first prize for the "Visual Symbol of the Cyprus Walk of Fame," thanking those who voted and supported her on this; Xrista describes this life accomplishment as "an honor for those who offered," focusing on her main design for the competition, saying, "the crown is, among other things, a mark of honor." Xrista, although already digitally literate, conquers projects by promoting her work through her launched website www.xristastavrou.com, featuring past and present arts and collections. By continuously keeping her imagination alive and being able to create a type of 'pleasant deception' looking closely at Xrista's designs, you will discover little angelical figured cubits or delicately shaded roses and faces, all of which fluidly evolve into surfacing what Xrista calls "experimentation with new media, a visual reality." A digital design artist whose work has always been connected by a richness of imagination and is not afraid to outlining her inspirations and feelings, demonstrating the workings of an erudite and passionate mind with a fantasy that conveys her pieces. See all of Xrista's work and read more about her story on her website and online Galleries.website and famous online Galleries.
